

METHODS OF ASSESSMENT OF LEARNING OUT COMES AND GRADUATE ATTRIBUTES

Methods for assessing the knowledge:

Essay questions: long may questions predominantly assess the wide knowledge of particular subject and able to assess the way of organizing, integrating and summarizing a particular topic.

Short answer questions: short answer questions are useful to assess the basic knowledge of the subject.

Academic qui lets: Academic increases the vocabulary, creative thinking and promotes self directed learning.

Viva /oral: Viva/voce helps to improve the communication skills and vocabulary.

Clinical case presentation: Helps to develop certain skills like observational skill, interpretation and diagnostic skill and rational thinking It helps to improve communication skills and doctor patient relationship.

Methods for assessing skills:

OSPE: Observed structured practical examination helps to assess certain skills of the student

OSCE: Observed structured clinical examination helps to assess clinical skill, interpret the clinical history, and interpret the investigational values competence in a realistic setting.

Long case examination: Long case assessment is integrated, in-depth assessment of clinical
Short case examination: Real time examination of clinical skills in a short period of time

Mini clinical examination: Short observation during clinical patient contact (10-20 minutes)

Direct observation of procedural skull frame: Trainee is observe by the faculty while performing the procedure independently in the hospital setup

Logbook: Keeps the record of day today clinical work DOPS is more reliable than logbook

Multisource feedback: Feedback is obtained from teachers, paramedical staff, fellow students, patients and relatives and non-clinical staff related to communication and procedural skills.

Assessment of attitudinal and communication skills:

By 360 degree feedback: Feedback is obtained from various stakeholders like teachers, colleagues, staffnurses, patients and relatives in relation to way of communication, method of communication and attitudetowards the patients

Dean & Principal
Mamata Dental College
Khammam - 507 002